

Bryan McKinley Jones Brayboy (Lumbee)

Dean - School of Education and Social Policy and the Carlos

Montezuma Professor of Education and Social Policy

Northwestern University

Bryan McKinley Jones Brayboy (Lumbee) is Dean of the School of Education and Social Policy and the Carlos Montezuma Professor of Education and Social Policy at Northwestern University. Formerly at ASU, he was Vice-President of Social Advancement, senior advisor to the president, director of the Center for Indian Education, and co-editor of the Journal of American Indian Education. From 2007 to 2012, he was visiting President's Professor of Indigenous education at the University of Alaska Fairbanks.

His scholarship is at the intersections of education, Indigenous Studies, law, and policy where he explores the ways that Indigenous Knowledge Systems engage and are engaged by institutions of higher education. He has published over 105 scholarly documents, and his scholarship and programming efforts have been funded by the National Science Foundation, the U.S. Department of Education, the Ford, Mellon, Spencer, and Kellogg Foundations.

He has been a visiting and noted scholar in Australia, Canada and New Zealand. He is a fellow of the American Educational Research Association and a member of the National Academy of Education.